Last modified: 24 November 2025

Our services are based on trust. Trust that we will listen to you carefully, trust that we will use your information to provide you with the best possible service, and trust that we will process your personal data in such a way that your privacy is guaranteed. This is inextricably linked to our mission: to be the best possible ally.

This Privacy and Cookies Statement explains everything you need to know about how we handle your personal data. When you use our services or visit our websites www.ibsca.nl or www.ibsfm.nl, we collect different types of personal data from you. Below, we specify - per purpose - what personal data we collect from you, the reason we process this data and how long the data is stored. If you have any questions or want to know exactly what we keep, please contact us via the contact details at the bottom of this Privacy and Cookies Statement.

Our Privacy and Cookies Statement in brief

When processing personal data, we comply with privacy laws. This means that we:

- Clearly define our purposes before we process your personal data, and we do so via this Privacy and Cookies Statement.
- Store as little personal data as possible and only the data that is necessary for our purposes.
- Explicitly request permission for the processing of your personal data, if permission is required.
- Take the necessary security measures to protect your personal data. We also impose these obligations on parties that process personal data for us.
- Respect your rights, such as the right to access, correct or erase your personal data held and processed by us.

What is personal data?

Personal data is all the information that clearly relates to, or can identify, you in any way. For example: your name, telephone number or your e-mail address. But your identification number(s) (for example: BSN / Dutch Citizen Service Number or social security number; hereafter referred to as 'identification number(s)') or your bank account number are also personal data. In short, it concerns all data that enables us to establish who you are.

Certain types of personal data are sensitive data, and are listed as 'special categories' of personal data. These relate to criminal data, biometric and genetic data, identification number(s), and data relating to health, religious or philosophical beliefs, political opinions, trade union membership, sexual orientation, or racial or ethnic origin.

These special categories are subject to extra protection and additional strict rules apply to the processing of this data. The only special category personal data that we record by default is your identification number(s) when you enter into a personal agreement with us. We need your identification number(s) to comply with our legal obligation to establish your identity and to provide information to the tax authorities. In addition, we record any data relating to fraud in order to determine to what extent we (still) want to, or can, maintain a relationship with you.

We do not use and process any data relating to the other special categories of personal data, unless these are necessary for us to be able to carry out our business operations in the correct manner. If that is the case, we will only do this after you have given us explicit permission to do so.
